Clay's Corner

Now concerning spiritual gifts, brothers, I do not want you to be uninformed. You know that when you were pagans you were led astray to mute idols, however you were led. Therefore I want you to understand that no one speaking in the Spirit of God ever says "Jesus is accursed!" and no one can say "Jesus is Lord" except in the Holy Spirit. Now there are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit; and there are varieties of service, but the same Lord; and there are varieties of activities, but it is the same God who empowers them all in everyone. To each is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good. For to one is given through the Spirit the utterance of wisdom, and to another the utterance of knowledge according to the same Spirit, to another faith by the same Spirit, to another gifts of healing by the one Spirit, to another the working of miracles, to another prophecy, to another the ability to distinguish between spirits, to another various kinds of tongues, to another the interpretation of tongues. All these are empowered by one and the same Spirit, who apportions to each one individually as he wills. - 1 Corinthians 12:1-11

This passage of scripture is another of those oft quoted and seldom fully understood passages from Paul's many writings. One could write a very lengthy work on all that is contained within just these 11 verses. But, for the purposes of today I wish to focus on just verse 3.

When it comes to teaching and teachings, we all bring presupposed ideas and notions to the table. Many of our beliefs are not necessarily our own original thoughts, but the thoughts of others we esteemed as wise and learned, and as such have adopted as our own the thoughts of those who taught before us. Further still, in our efforts to seek the "truth," we find that only those teachings that we find comfortable with our own thought processes are those that we will incorporate into our own belief system. And we build around our belief system a wall of defense that is impermeable by any teachings that defy our logic and our comfort zones until such a time as we finally believe that we have arrived. We've got it all figured out. And while we might say, "I am still learning," the truth is that we are not learning, but we are refuting anything that doesn't agree with our own experience or our own thought processes. It is then that we become deaf to the continued maturation that we are called to so many times in scripture.

And the litmus test has always been, "does this teaching agree with my own suppositions and beliefs, and if not then it must be a false teaching." What I have found through the years is that while some beliefs create a certain amount of comfort in our own paradigms, they fly directly in the face of what is really taught in scripture. Further still, they cause us to lash out at others who have matured in their faith to a different level than our own as being wrong or, worse still, blasphemies and false teachings by false teachers.

False Teachers. What has always been the test for them? How have we always identified them? By comparing what they teach with what believe to be the true interpretation of God's Word. And we seldom if wever apply the righteous litmus test to those who teach different to what we believe: "Therefore I want you to understand that no one speaking in the Spirit of God ever says "Jesus is accursed!" and no one can say "Jesus is Lord" except in the Holy Spirit." Let me suggest to you that the next time you want to find out if I person is a false teacher, give them this test: "Is Jesus Lord?" It's a simple question. And the answer cannot come except through the source of true righteousness, the Spirit of God.

I do not agree with a lot of the teachings out there. Many of them are just plain wrong. But I seldom ever accuse someone of being a false teacher simply because their ideas of truth do not mesh with my own. What I do do however is apply this test. If there is any hesitancy or any other answer than, "Yes, Jesus is Lord," then and only then do I make a decision as to whether someone is a false teacher or not. You see I operate on a different principle now, whatever I do, in word or deed, I do all to the best of my ability in the name of the Lord... even calling someone on the carpet over a teaching. Why? Because He is Lord. He is King. He is the great judge with the wisdom to do all of those things and more. I am just a servant, with certain gifts. And my job is to bring in the harvest. I don't have the ability to separate the wheat from the tares. Do you? See ya Soon!
